

Core skills in Hand Surgery: Cadaver Workshop

28th- 30th March 2012 Loxley Building, Hull Campus, Hull York Medical School

This annual cadaver workshop focuses on providing the newly specialising surgeon with a refresher on related anatomy, and training on a series of procedures and techniques which are common to many aspects of upper limb surgery.

Training will be delivered face to face at Hull York Medical School's state-of-the-art anatomy facilities at the University of Hull campus. Under the direction and supervision of expert tutors surgical trainees will become better equipped to perform surgical interventions to a high standard.

Key Benefits

- Cadaveric anatomical demos with low participant / faculty ratio
- Opportunity to practice and improve basic hand surgical techniques in a safe environment before performing 'the real thing' on a live patient
- Use of a special "lite embalming" technique which means cadaveric tissues are much more like real life
- Gaining an understanding of the pros and cons of each procedure enabling the trainee to consider and choose alternatives
